Fixed line 2-wire O. in regional network (cu)
The availability of the regional network portion is case-specific

A fixed line in a regional network is implemented over a pair of copper wires.

A regional network begins at a concentrator area's cross-connection point and ends at another concentrator area's cross-connection point.

The availability of the regional network portion is case-specific. The subscriber lines needed are charged for according to the price list valid at any given time

Availability enquiries	€ / enquiry / address
Within Telia's constructed network	25,23

Telia charges for responding to availability enquiries only in so far as the positive responses given to availability enquiries made in a period of three months is more than double the number of subscriber lines ordered by the telecom operator from Telia within the same period of time. The charge is collected only for responses exceeding the number of responses specified above.
