VERSATILE MOBILE COMPANY NETWORK

The service is suitable for versatile networking from mobile users to devices and offices. In addition, the service is available abroad and is also suitable for temporary use. The process from order to delivery is fully automated and the service is immediately ready to use.

Mobile users and vehicles

You get reliable connections quickly, for example, on construction sites. With the service, you can work on tablets, through WLAN routers, on smart phones or on any other device with a modern operating system. No separate identification is needed.

Quick deployment

You have real-time 24/7 access to add users and additional services. With just a few clicks, for example, back-up system of a factory or business traveller's connections are up and running. Fast deployment is the crowning moment of the service experience.

Using services from the cloud and locally

With the Mobile Company Network, you can ensure uninterrupted transition to cloud services, or use the services in the intranet smoothly both locally and in the cloud.

Reliable and secure connection

The Mobile Company Network is an excellent solution for data transfer when the end-user experience needs to be as easy and reliable as possible without compromising data security. For example, a healthcare service provider could offer their customers a device that is ready for use and from which data will not leak onto the Internet.
